Thank you, Volunteers!
President’s Message
Mark Lujan, President, Board of Directors

Here we are again! The start of the New Year and we’re already building away! For those who haven’t been to our new Mesa Del Rio site, please do so. Bill has his team of volunteers hard at work building new two-story homes for our families. I’ve had some time to settle in as president and I love every minute of it. The organization is running like a well-oiled machine. Kori Ann and her team have partner families lined up, Joani and Beth have sponsorships in the process, Restore is growing, and all the other staff/volunteers are making it happen. I’ve mentioned our staff, but for this quarter’s message I want to emphasize our great volunteers as well. A lot of people know Habitat through the houses we build or the items sold at Restore, but what makes it all possible is the never-ending support from our volunteers. Our volunteers range from the SWAT (Special Work Assignment Team) to the people in the main office, Restore, volunteers on site, board members, and in many other places. The fact that we have such a strong volunteer base just gives me a lot of faith in humanity. It shows that when people have problems there are always people there to help solve those problems. And the great thing is it’s free of charge. That’s why I want to give a special thank you for every volunteer with Habitat, including my fellow board members. Last, but not least, I wanted to give thanks to the donors that make this mission possible. I’m sure everyone is excited for that first house to be done on Mesa Del Rio so we can all see the new houses and the new family. I am looking forward to a great new year and to continuing with you all to take Habitat to greater levels! Thank you!

The Pitts Family and Mark Lujan at Sandia House Dedication, October 31, 2015.

Joani’s Corner
Joani Costello, Executive Director

It’s a day in the office at Greater Albuquerque Habitat for Humanity and I hear music. There is a lively hum of human activity going on: phone conversations, phones ringing, the door chiming as people go to and from the office to ReStore and back, maintenance workers throughout the halls, people bustling back and forth in the hallways, and much more. For me, it is a symphony. It is the sounds of numerous individuals doing something wonderful; they are providing the breath of life that fuels what it takes to keep GAHH alive and humming. They aid us in managing the myriad of programs that make up our complicated and vital operation. While it’s true that we have paid staff to oversee each section of our “orchestra,” it is the volunteers who make the music happen. Dispatching trucks for donation pick-up, answering calls from prospective families, making thank you calls to ReStore donors, entering donor information into the database (highly critical for grants) and sending timely letters to donors, qualifying families for a home, marketing and advertising, group presentations, outreach events, donor cultivation, contract negotiations, multi-layered accounting for all the pieces – the list goes on and on. Without volunteers to assist us, we could not survive. Let’s not forget our board of directors and committee members. Each and every month, and at every event, they are there to guide and direct our efforts to achieve success. The board oversees governance and policy for the affiliate – the rules we must live by and that help us to remain strong and viable.

In 2015, 157 unique individuals volunteered over 4,000 hours of their time and talents in the office and ReStore. Many of them come two or three days per week and some even have a regular schedule. Their wealth of knowledge overwhelms us with gratitude. Each and every department head at GAHH is a one-man band. Without volunteers, their jobs would be impossible to accomplish. There is a song whose lyrics are “united we stand, divided we fall.” Those words epitomize the impact of volunteers in our lives here at GAHH and those of the families we strive so diligently to help.

Without volunteers, our mission to help low-income families achieve homeownership would remain just a dream. Habitat, along with volunteers, is not just building homes, but building dreams. For the jobsite, it takes an average of 400 volunteers and 2,500 hours per home to complete the process. In 2015, nearly 1,000 volunteers gave just under 11,000 hours of their time! This shows the loyalty and dedication for what we do throughout our great community.

Volunteering is hard. People have jobs, children, hectic schedules, and just plain “life” getting in the way of things. It is proven that those who find the time and make the time to give of themselves for the benefit of others are happier and their lives richer. There are no words to sufficiently convey our heartfelt gratitude to the dedicated volunteers who keep our symphony going, so I will leave you with this quote from the late Albert Schweitzer. “I don’t know what your destiny will be, but one thing I know: the only ones among you who will be really happy are those who will have sought and found how to serve.”

Looking for happiness? Volunteer…Thrive!

Operational Corner – Volunteer Update

Doug Champlin, Operations Manager and Regina Macias, Volunteer Manager

As GAHH’s Operations Manager, the Volunteer Department falls under my oversight. In developing our department’s strategic goals and objectives for this year, revamping our Volunteer Program was at the top of my list. I wanted to see a fresh new look and feel for the program. This was going to be a huge task, as our volunteers and the volunteer program reaches into all of the departments in GAHH, not just those under the operations umbrella. Regina Macias, our Volunteer Manager, has stepped up to the plate and made some significant strides in revamping our program. I’m very excited and encouraged about the progress and direction that I’ve seen so far in the first quarter of 2016. Some of the changes include a rebranding of our volunteer logo, volunteer feedback surveys, and several volunteer recognition events during the year. These are just a few of the changes that have seen excellent traction, with many more being developed and implemented. For a more in-depth overview of our new Volunteer Program, read Regina’s highlights in the next paragraphs. If you have any questions, please contact me at doug@habitatabq.org or 265-0057, x112.

Since taking on the role as the new Volunteer Manager, one of my key goals was to focus on the volunteers and recognize the importance each individual brings. Every day volunteers make huge impacts in all areas of Habitat for Humanity and help bridge together our community and our organization one hour at a time. We cannot thank our volunteers enough for their hard work and services, so we wanted to find new ways to recognize their efforts and create more meaningful experiences. When I was selected to be the Volunteer Manager and challenged to rebrand the program, I was thrilled at the prospect of reaching volunteers, hearing suggestions, and maximizing your utility in making this organization a great place to volunteer.

2016 is off to a great start heading toward new changes and developments, including our own new group name and logo. Add up your volunteer hours from Bronze, Silver, and Gold to receive items and discounts! Become an ambassador for Habitat and help with training, creating, and designing in different areas. Join us for food, games, and giveaways as we show our gratitude at volunteer appreciation events. Be a member of our first ever Volunteer Committee. I am very excited for this year and the kick off of these new additions. Most of all, I am excited to continue working alongside all of our present and future volunteers. I know that this year will be better than ever and we could not have been successful without the help and knowledge of the volunteer crew. I encourage you to stop in and meet some of our volunteers. Ask questions, find out how to get involved, spread the word, and we will continue to grow as a better, stronger community! I look forward to meeting you this year.
Habitat Volunteers and the Ripple Effect

Bill Reilly, Construction Manager

Habitat for Humanity was established in 1976, and in those 40 years 6.8 million people have found stability through safe and affordable housing. Habitat is currently working diligently in nearly 80 countries worldwide to assist those in need of adequate shelter. Every year Habitat organizes two million volunteers to build homes, hope, pride, and futures for those less fortunate.

The numbers are impressive. However, the “ripple effect” of lives impacted through Habitat volunteer efforts may never truly be measured. We all know that building homes, neighborhoods, and communities has immediate and long-term benefits for everyone involved, but the incomputable value of our homeowners’ improved health and safety, their children’s well-being and development, their increased educational and job prospects (just to name a few), serve as a clear example of how the “ripple effect” from Habitat volunteers help build wealth without currency or statistical data.

Greater Albuquerque Habitat for Humanity is very fortunate to have SWAT (Special Work Assignment Team), a group of very talented and experienced volunteer men and women dedicated to ending poverty housing in Albuquerque. They seem to possess an inexhaustible energy when orchestrating and working with our general volunteers on the jobsite. We also have a great volunteer base from churches, businesses, organizations and individual participation. We would not be able to accomplish our mission without the help of our volunteers. Volunteers are truly Habitat’s greatest asset!

Construction on our latest project, Mesa Del Rio, is well underway. We are building eight residences – four pairs of single family attached homes, two-story, with 1,300 sq. ft. of heated space, three bedrooms, 1.5 baths, and a two-car garage. Although this project presents many challenges to build, our SWAT and general volunteers have not balked once at the test. In typical fashion, we are incorporating sustainable building strategies which increase durability, energy and water efficiency, and improved air quality for our homeowners, while reducing the home’s monthly and life cycle costs. Environmentally friendly building products and resources emphasize durability, efficiency, and affordability. We have also revised the original floor plan to make this home more handicap accessible to meet Habitat visit-ability and longevity standards.

The Mesa Del Rio Project is challenging, but with the help of the SWAT and our many volunteers I have no doubt we will accomplish our goal of building and completing eight Habitat homes for deserving partner families. A big THANK YOU to our SWAT and general volunteers for their incredible contribution to GAHH, and to the two million people that will volunteer for Habitat globally this year. We greatly appreciate your efforts to eliminate poverty housing and creating a “ripple effect.”

Family Services – Volunteers, Applicants, and New Homeowners O-MY!
Kori Ann Sanchez, Family Services Manager

GAHH has recently rebranded our volunteer department. Did you know the estimated average value of a volunteer’s time is $15.39 per hour? At GAHH, new leadership and organization efforts have been implemented to provide more emphasis on volunteer appreciation and more focus on volunteer needs, and our volunteer retention lists are soaring. So, if you are thinking about volunteering, please don’t hesitate to give our new Volunteer Manager Regina Macias a call! Additionally, if you are aware of a business or organization that would like to have more information about how families qualify for our program, call me at 505-359-2427. It is not uncommon for these two departments to schedule a dual appointment with organizations, businesses, and schools to offer a quick presentation regarding program parameters and volunteer opportunities for individuals, staff, and family. Try it! Shifting your daily routine to help a low-income family realize homeownership, quite simply, feels good. The experience is amazing, one we can share with our children. And the combined efforts of everyone will do so much to strengthen our community.

No free time to volunteer? That’s okay, too! We are currently searching for four new partner families to qualify for a newly-constructed home, right down the road from West Mesa High School on Mesa Del Rio St. NW. Perhaps you or someone you know will qualify. Please see the criteria below and spread the word.

Searching for Four Qualified Families
Qualifications
• First time homebuyer
• Low income per 2015/16 HUD income guidelines (if qualified for assistance; families are usually applicable for our program)
• Resident of Bernalillo County for at least 12 months
• All collection, derogatory, and judgment debt paid off and three-year discharge on bankruptcy
• At least one year in the same line of work (full time), disability/SSI/child support are sources of income, student financial aid or food stamps not accepted
• Positive rental rating
• Pass a background and sex offender check; and
• Complete 500 hours of sweat equity on the construction jobsite.

Families selected for the Mesa Del Rio Project will receive a $105,000, 1,300 sq. ft. newly-constructed home with three bedrooms, 1 ½ baths, and a two-car garage. Homeowners will be responsible for an approximately $450 per month mortgage payment, 0% interest, 25-year loan. Homeowners may also qualify for a $7,000 down payment grant.

Imagine the impact this program will have on the lives of the families selected. Please give me a call. Thank you!

– KoriAnn Sanchez, Family Service Manager, Greater Albuquerque Habitat for Humanity (505-359-2427)

Delving into Development

Beth Goldman, Director of Resource Development

People will forget what you said. They will forget what you did. But they will never forget how you made them feel. – Maya Angelou

Three years ago, when I stepped into the position of Director of Resource Development at GAHH, I knew that volunteers were essential for building Habitat homes. After all, that’s one of the most well-known and highly respected features of Habitat for Humanity…volunteers build homes for low-income families in their communities while meeting new people, gaining confidence, and learning new skills. Everybody wins!

On the other hand, I had no idea that dozens of volunteers also help out in the ReStore and GAHH office on a weekly, sometimes daily, basis. Today, I am grateful and amazed to say that close to 300 people have stepped forward and given their time enthusiastically to the Development Department since I came on board. Volunteers are everywhere!

So, what about the opening words from Maya Angelou? “They will never forget how you made them feel.” Not so long ago a volunteer, after one day on the job, emailed me and said that she would not be coming back. Disappointed and concerned I gave her a call and here’s what I discovered. When she went home that first day she felt that volunteering was going to add too much stress to her life and that was not at all what she wanted. I suggested that maybe we hadn’t yet found the right niche for her skills and interests. I was encouraged when she agreed to give volunteering one more shot. She did come back and it took a little while to find the right spot, but now she is a key volunteer in the Development Department and works three hours/day, three times a week. Is volunteering supposed to nurture the volunteer? Absolutely!

Certainly, people volunteer with the idea of giving back to their community, but studies also show that volunteer activities can strengthen the social ties that protect individuals from isolation during difficult times. Volunteering and the experience of helping others lead to a sense of greater self-worth and trust. Even when controlling for other factors such as age, health, and gender, research has found that when individuals volunteer, they are more likely to live longer. Research demonstrates that volunteering leads to better health and that older volunteers are the most likely to receive physical and mental health benefits from their volunteer activities. Habitat strives to provide opportunities for volunteers to reap the benefits while helping us accomplish our mission.

If you’d like to learn more about the health benefits of volunteering, check out the Corporation for National and Community Service report The Health Benefits of Volunteering: A Review of Recent Research or call Regina at 265-0057, x111 and volunteer!

Building Walls that are Bridges

Susan Shipley

Unity House Project continues to welcome a diversity of faiths to work side-by-side in harmony to build a duplex at 828 and 832 Mesa del Rio NW. As of this printing, Albuquerque Mennonite Church, Blake Road Baptist Church, B’nai Israel Synagogue, Covenant Presbyterian Church, Eubank Ward of the Church of Latter Day Saints, First Christian Church, First Presbyterian Church, First Unitarian Church, Immanuel Presbyterian Church, Monte Vista Christian Church, Netherwood Park Church of Christ, Pagan Societies, San Gabriel the Archangel Episcopal Church, Shepherd of the Valley Presbyterian Church, St. Andrew Presbyterian Church, St. Timothy’s Lutheran Church, and the Unitarian Universalist Congregation Westside have made formal commitments. Many other faiths who are excited to join this build are still determining their level of commitment. At a time when acts of divisiveness are headline news, Unity House Project celebrates the common vision of love, service, and social justice, bridging across our differences as we build walls that will embrace families in need in our community.
Donor Honor Roll

Greater Albuquerque Habitat for Humanity thanks the many individuals, foundations, companies, churches, and organizations that have donated from August 2015 – January 2016. Your generosity supports the construction of affordable, safe, and decent low-income homes in Albuquerque. Thank you. Help Build It!
Meet Bruce Haynes, Finance Director

In starting a new position as finance director for Greater Albuquerque Habitat for Humanity (GAHH), one of the things I am amazed by is the number of volunteers working here on a daily basis. I have worked at other not-for-profit organizations in Albuquerque over the past 20 years, but none of them have the volunteer presence that work in every area of the organization.

The administration area has different people who assist in answering phones, data entry of donor information, special projects, and filing. The finance department is blessed with Elaine Clements, who completes our filing, data entry of receipts, and other miscellaneous duties on a weekly basis with a smile and a great attitude. She really improves the operation of our finance department.

If you don’t have the time to volunteer, another way to help GAHH is by making donations that allow us to achieve our mission of helping low income families achieve the goal of owning their own home. While you probably are aware of our ReStore that accepts most building materials, furniture, and household appliances, there is also a Cars for Homes program where used vehicles go back into the mission. More information about this program can be found at www.habitatabq.org.

Of course, you can also make financial contributions to GAHH that help to build homes.

As an organization with a lean staff, GAHH is extremely thankful for the dedication of volunteers that come and help on a regular basis. Our volunteers are essential in helping GAHH that help to build homes.

Bruce Haynes, Finance Director

Elaine Clements has assisted with bookkeeping every week since 2010. That’s over 1,200 hours!
